

DEAR DAIRYVILLE

KEEPING THE COMMUNITY INFORMED

MAY, 2010 ISSUE

From Our President's Desk

Is anyone else out there ready for summer? What a crazy spring we've endured: three hail storms, frost protection in May, and more rain than we could have ever predicted. As for my garden and me, we are ready for some sunshine. With any luck, summertime will arrive, which means a couple of exciting things for the Dairyville Community Club. We will award $14,000 more in scholarships and the Pancake Breakfast will be held on Sunday, June 6, 2010.

Our community continues to produce outstanding students who have the opportunity to earn scholarships from our club. This year we will give $14,000 to eleven students who will be attending college in the fall. This has put us over the mind-boggling benchmark of $100,000 in total scholarships! What an incredible accomplishment for our community. The hard work of those who have selflessly volunteered countless hours with the Orchard Festival and the other activities that the Dairyville Community Club does has truly paid off. My hat goes off to everyone involved in making our community a better place to live and giving our young people a chance to become contributing members of society.

As we inch closer to June, please mark your calendar with our Annual Pancake Breakfast. This year it will be held on Sunday, June 6, 2010, from 7AM-11AM at Lassen View School. Bring a friend or neighbor to see what a marvelous community we are a part of and enjoy some delicious pancakes. It is always so much fun to catch up with those we live so near to but don't see often enough.

Once again, congratulations to all of our students. Have a wonderful summer.

Kathy Brandt, President

Introducing the 2010 Upper-Division Agricultural Studies Scholarship Recipients

Upper-Division Scholarships are awarded to college students who have graduated from a Tehama County high school. These Upper-Division scholarship awards are to be used during the students' junior or senior year of college or while they are completing their graduate work. The recipients must provide proof that they are enrolled as full-time students (12 units or more), and must be majoring in an agricultural related field. Our congratulations go out to all four of these outstanding young ladies!

Nicki Humphrey $2500

Nicki is a 2002 graduate of Corning High School where she was the valedictorian. In 2007, she received her Bachelor of Science Degree in Agriculture.

At the present time, Nicki is attending Colorado State University where she is finishing her third year as a graduate student working toward completing her Doctor of Veterinary Medicine degree in May of 2011.

Nicki is an outstanding student and has received exceptional recommendations from administrators under whom she has worked. She has been an officer in the Student Chapter of the American Association of Bovine Practitioners and in the Student Chapter of the American Veterinary Medical Association. Jay Tischendorf, DVM and Senior Professional Services Veterinarian for Novartis Animal Health, refers to Nicky as "Mature beyond her years and no stranger to life's adversity, Nicki is one of those rare individuals entering the veterinary field who effectively combines high intellectual capacity and scientific thinking with real world, hands-on skills and ability."

Her veterinary related work experience includes: Veterinary Technician at Orland Veterinary Hospital in Orland, CA; Ranch Hand at the Purcell Ranch in Ault, CO; Veterinary Assistant at the UT, Knoxville Veterinary Teaching Hospital in Knoxville, TN, Secretary and Ranch Hand at Ronald Humphrey Construction in Flournoy, CA; and Dairy Externship at Mill Creek Veterinary Services in Visalia, CA.

In Nicki's essay she states, "...I am confident agriculture in Tehama County will continue to be a major source of revenue. While the economy may affect several, if not all areas of agriculture, I believe the roots for the majority of the operations within the county run too deep to deter these producers from their way of life. The continued cooperation of farmers and ranchers with local agricultural organizations will help producers be more successful in reaching consumers when standing firm against organizations that want to abolish agriculture."

Valerie George $2500

Valerie is a 2000 graduate of Red Bluff High School. She received her Bachelor of Animal Science Degree from Chico State University. She is currently working on her Master's Degree in Community Food and Agricultural Systems at Michigan State University.

In the fall of 2002, Valerie chose to switch her major from fine arts to agriculture. As is stated in her essay, "While initially it felt like a dramatic shift, I later realized that there were significant similarities between the two disciplines. While one paints with brushes on canvas, and the other colors the landscape with seeds and animals, both bring life and beauty to the world."

Valerie has maintained exceptional grades throughout her college years. According to Michael W. Hamm, C.S. Mott Professor of Sustainable Agriculture at Michigan State University, "Val is very independent in her work, takes strong initiative and is demonstrating a very good ability to do a number of different projects simultaneously... She is a credit to Tehama County and the agricultural community."

Her work experience includes: Graduate Research Assistant at the Michigan State University, C.S. Mott Group for Sustainable Food Systems; Junior Specialist for the Plant Sciences Department at the University of California, Davis; Farm Apprentice at Full Belly Farm in Guinda, CA; University Farm Sheep Unit Student Management Team Member at California State University, Chico; and Student Manager for the University Farm Dairy Unit at Chico State University.

To quote Valerie, "The long-term health of a community can be directly influenced by local agricultural production and I believe that if Tehama County places a priority on tackling the intersection between diet/agriculture, our local cities can prosper...Therefore, I propose the implementation of a Farm to School program throughout Tehama County, because it would not only make agriculture a centerpiece of Tehama County's communities, but also promote improvements in community health."

Jamie Carter $1000

Jamie is a 2004 graduate of Corning High School. She completed her freshman and sophomore years of college at Shasta Community College. She is currently a senior at Chico State University where she is majoring in Agricultural Education. She is working toward attaining a Master's Degree and a career as an Agriculture Advisor for secondary education or higher.

While in college, Jamie has been a member of several organizations and she also continues to provide ongoing volunteer service to several local 4-H, fair, and livestock activities.

Her work experience includes Clerking for the Tehama County Fair Livestock (2005 - present), Directing row crop work for CSU Chico (2009 - present) and Jamie is a five year employee of Mt. Lassen Motor Transit, Inc.

Dr. Bradley W. Dodson, CSU Chico College of Agriculture states, "Jamie has a great personality and attitude. She is pleasant, personable, and witty. She is fun to be around and work with. She has a humble outlook and seems to get along and work well with others. She has 'can do' attitude being open to opportunities afforded to her. Jamie will be open to new experiences and meeting new people."

In her essay, Jamie discusses the impacts that the "phasing out" of older diesel engines will have on agriculture and the community at large. She states, "Those that realize the implications of such conformity need to take it upon themselves to educate the general public who may not understand what effects this will have on the farmers of their community and the overall cost of their future commodities. Not only does this affect the producer's ability to harvest their crops, it has serious implications on the transportation component to have commodities delivered to the consumer."

Jamie Marron $1000

Jamie is a 2008 graduate of Corning High School. She is in the process of completing her sophomore year as an Agricultural Education major at Chico State University. When her studies are completed, Jamie hopes to receive a Bachelor's Degree and a Teaching Credential. Upon graduation from Chico State University, Jamie plans to become a high school Agriculture Teacher in this area.

Jamie continues to participate in numerous clubs and organizations while in college. She is currently employed at the Glenn County 4-H office where she helps coordinate county-wide events, facilitates those events, and builds leadership teams such as the county All Stars, Blast members, and camp youth directors. She really enjoys interacting with children and is working towards giving them some of the great opportunities that she had as a 4-H member.

According to Dr. Bradley W. Dodson, CSU Chico College of Agriculture, "Jamie is a very special young lady. She is super conscientious and committed. She wants to succeed and works extremely hard to make it happen. She will take the initiative when needed and follow when others step up. She is a humble leader with a servant heart."

Jamie states in her essay, "The average age of farmers in the United States is 54 years of age. It is important to have more farmers in place when current farmers retire. In my opinion, that is why we need students to become interested in agriculture at a young age. Although there are numerous issues that agriculture is faced with such as land development, shortage of water, lack of ag literacy, and the unfortunate economy issue, we must encourage these students to continue the family farm or become a new farmer. They can get the needed instruction through post secondary and secondary schools to receive higher education to become successful farmers."

Team Sunsweet Donates to the Scholarship Fund

The Dairyville Community Club, Inc. is very proud to announce that an $800 contribution has been made to the Agricultural Scholarship Fund. Alan and Beverley Abbs of Team Sunsweet, presented the check to Community Club member, Cyndi Gilles. The donation was the result of proceeds from the Tehama County Wildflower Race that was held on April 24, 2010.

The Community Club supports the Race with volunteers, supplies and most importantly, cookies! This year the "Cookie Queens" (cookie bakers) included Sandy Hunn, Mary Christensen, Cyndi Gilles and Becky Calkins.

We would like to extend our thanks to the Abbs and Team Sunsweet for their very generous donation.
